THE PROGRAMME
This Master is designed to offer market oriented business training in modern management and practice for young future East and West managers. It has a distinct economics and international business flavour with a special focus on industrial economics and includes some complementary modules supplying other important competencies.

The first two semesters consist of mandatory and optional courses at TU Bergakademie Freiberg. A fundamental knowledge of modern economics, especially of the economies of developing, emerging, and former transition countries, as well as knowledge in special fields of international management, are an integral part of the Freiberg modules.

In the second year, the students have the opportunity to spend one semester abroad at a partner university. In the last semester, a three month internship leads the student into a master thesis that can be written and supervised in Freiberg or a partner university.

The programme offers the possibility to do a double MBA with a selection of partner universities. All courses of the international programme in Freiberg and abroad are taught in English.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES AFTER GRADUATION
Typical professions targeted by IBDEM MBA graduates: In companies, this includes predominately higher levels of management with significant responsibilities, in particular with respect to the internationalisation of the firm. In public administration institutions, IBDEM MBAs would target departments and professions that are concerned with international bi-lateral and multi-lateral negotiations on economic issues such as trade in goods and services, international transfer of capital, inward and outward foreign direct investment, international innovation networks and policies, competition law and competition policy, economic aspects of environmental protection, etc. In international organisations and NGOs, graduates from this MBA programme could make a difference on issues like economic development, pro-poor policies, economic aspects of transition, etc.
